On one occasion she said he came over to her in Spanish, but whether he spoke in English or Spanish he always declared himself free to marry her and finish his career in the films. She, in turn, promised to be his wife, she testified.

JUDGE CAVERLY UNCLE SAM'S WILL DECIDE FLIERS WILL MURDER TRIAL TOUCH BOSTON

Decides That Loeb and Leopold Are Sane So Far As Court Is Concerned.

Will Be Welcomed Back Without Pomp or Pageantry

(By The Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Dr. Bernard Gucek, of New York testified at the Franks hearing this morning that Richard Loeb throughout his mental examination of him had admitted that he struck the blow with a cold chisel which killed Bobby Franks.

Throughout the investigation of the connection of Loeb and Nathan E. Leopold, Jr., with the murder the matter of who actually struck the fatal blow has been the unsolved mystery. Both youths, while confessing to the kidnapping and slaying accused the other.

Two defense attorneys previously on the witness stand had failed to testify, to ask the boys as to which had struck the fatal blow and the state had been unable to bring out the point.

Loeb remained impassive when Dr. Gucek testified that he had killed Bobby Franks. Leopold leaned forward, a grimace on his face, smiled slightly and talked with counsel.

The statement that Loeb actually had struck the fatal blow was brought out under questioning by Benjamin Bachrach of defense counsel.

"Did Loeb say who struck the blow?" asked Bachrach.

"He told me throughout all details: that he, Loeb, struck the blow," replied Dr. Gucek.

Judge Caverly and the attorneys remained impassive as had Loeb when the testimony was offered. Judge Caverly leaning calmly on his hand, elbow on the arm of his chair.

(By The Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Another fortnight of testimony striving for mitigation of the punishment to be imposed on Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb for kidnapping and murdering the boy, Bobby Franks, in the hearing in which Chief Justice John R. Caverly exercises the functions of both judge and jury.

Full responsibility for deciding the fate of the youths has been accepted definitely ruled that the boys are sane as far as his court is concerned and that he will decide whether the defense, through its attorneys, has introduced anything to alleviate the penalty.

His ruling was intended to preclude any further attempts of the state to turn the hearing into a jury trial, to determine the sanity of the defendants. Through the testimony of Dr. Gucek, that "diseased motivation," "boyhood phantasies," and a "childish compact," founded on perversion, actuated the crime, the state has contended for a Gucek, of New York, third psychiatrist to take the stand for the defense, today continued his testimony, which was expected to tell that already detailed by Doctors C. and Wm. Healy, of Boston. Several other alienists will be used by the defense in accordance with the number of other witnesses that it is intended to call.

Asked how long he would speak when the hearing reached the argument stage, Clarence S. Darrow, defense chief counsel for the defense, replied to the suggestion it might take a whole day by saying "an American magazine once called Oscar Wilde for terms for writing thirty thousand words on some subject, and he wrote the reply in two days. There were three days left, but he might find enough words for half a court session or one hour."

Neither Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., nor Richard Loeb, confined to the effort of the defense to show mitigation of evidence to evade the death penalty. This was made clear today by Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defense counsel.

The defense let it be known that ten or twelve witnesses would follow the alienists on the stand, including some students from the University of Michigan, where both youths had been students, and that surprise testimony was expected.

Talking along in his monotone, Mr. Bachrach suddenly interrupted Dr. Gucek with a question as to whether Loeb had admitted who struck the fatal blow.

"I took up with Loeb the Frank case and asked him to tell of it," testified Dr. Gucek. "Loeb replied in a most matter of fact way, narrated without any squamishness, the details and planning of the crime. He showed no regret, no passion, no love and as he kept on talking it became evident to me that he was utterly devoid of emotional responses."

"I never saw such profound disparity," he told me of his little brother, of whom he was most fond. Yet he had considered him as a possible victim. Even here he showed no emotional response. By saying he had nothing to do with it, he might call forth any such response."

"He does not take seriously at all his present situation. My whole impression of him, based upon his performance in this case, is that he is a diseased state of some sort."

(By ADNA MARSHALL. Copyright, 1924, by The Bee.) WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Like heroes unheralded, without pomp or pageantry, the fliers who have circled the world for Uncle Sam will be welcomed back to American soil about August 16, when it is expected they will touch at Boston.

No rise in official status, no grand receptions, no parties at which honor can be done, no lavish entertainments, are being planned for them. Instead, at their own request, they will drop quietly to earth and huddle off for a few good hours sleep, so that they may continue to Seattle and the end of their trip more rapidly.

"Well done," written in a letter of commendation from Secretary of War Weeks, will be the aviators' sole reward, for congress has not authorized promotion or even a decoration for world tour accomplishment. "They'll just pass through as part of the flight," it was said at headquarters today.

But quietly the country has gone about preparing informal welcomes for Lieutenant Lowell Smith and his companions, Lieutenants Leslie P. Arnold, Arik Nelson and John Harding, Jr., and Leigh Wade and Henry Ogden. If the last two can get a ship to continue from Iceland near where they were picked up in a wrecked plane.

At Boston the governors of the six New England States will be "unofficially waiting" to bid them an American good-bye. And Channing H. Cox, of Massachusetts; William S. Flynn, of Rhode Island; Percival P. Baxter, of Maine; Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire; Redfield Proctor, of Connecticut; and Charles H. Johnson, of Vermont, will lead a group of some thousands of prominent citizens who have been "most unofficially invited" in a rousing cheer for the aviators.

Quite without plan or program, Mayor Nathan P. Patrick will lead them to the harbor waiting to lead them in their descent upon this town and in the remainder of the flight from Atlantic to Pacific coast.

Of course, if a few of the thousands of persons who may "accidentally turn up" should take it upon themselves to raise a loud hurrah or two for the intrepid fliers, the aviators will not help that, but morning by morning by the state bar examination and went to Chatham where he established a partnership with Claude A. Swanson, then a well known Pittsylvanian attorney. This partnership existed until Mr. Swanson went to Congress. Later, it was revived and continued for four or five years.

Mr. Whitehead was honored in 1899 by being elected Pittsylvanian representative in the State Senate, this without a party contest. He served during the extended session or until 1904, during which time the Constitutional Convention was engaged. Its labors later coming before the General Assembly for ratification.

Mr. Whitehead at the termination of this service withdrew and did not again aspire to any further honor. Following the keep political fight between his father, J. R. Whitehead, and Claude A. Swanson for Congress, while Mr. Whitehead ran as an independent, Joseph Whitehead removed from the county and lived for some time in Atlanta. He maintained his official residence in Pittsylvanian county, however.

An honor which came to Mr. Whitehead several years ago, was his election as chairman of the county Democratic committee which post he held for a number of years. He is associated with the state Democratic executive committee from the Fifth district. Mr. Whitehead was married many years ago to Miss Ruth Tredway, daughter of the late Judge James L. Tredway. They have nine children. Mr. Whitehead is a member of the Chatham Baptist church.

John W. Davis will be elected by 284 electoral votes. D. C. Hodgkin, a former Danville man and now associated with Clem L. Shaver, slated for chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"I make this statement from certain knowledge of facts obtained by me in the past two years," Mr. Hodgkin said. "Every state has its own peculiar conditions and I will name a few of the states which are bound to cast their electoral votes for the Democratic nominees."

In addition to the solid South in which I include Tennessee, Oklahoma and Kentucky, John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan will carry New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Kansas, with more than an even chance in New York, Indiana and Illinois. In New York the Republicans are sadly disorganized with no outstanding figures running for local office. In Indiana the former Republican governor, in his own right, is charged with every crime on the calendar, some of which were proven to the satisfaction of the voters if not of the courts.

La Follette and Wheeler will carry five northwestern Republican states and will get all told a popular vote of nearly 4,000,000, but in no big state will they cut into the Democratic vote sufficiently to hurt and most of their support will come from disgruntled Republican ranks and the socialistically inclined foreign group.

Mr. Hodgkin was connected with the Democratic National Committee for a number of years and originated and perfected the Victory Club scheme of finance which has been enthusiastically endorsed and approved by all the leaders of the party. Mayor Harry Woodling is the president of the Danville Victory Club.

Mr. Hodgkin is in Danville today for a short visit with old friends and says he is "just resting for awhile." He will go to Clarksville, W. Va., for the notification ceremonies next Monday.

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Crop and weather conditions in Virginia and North Carolina during the week ending yesterday were summarized today by the department of agriculture as follows:

Virginia dry weather unfavorable and crops deteriorated, except cotton which is in good condition. Showers later part of week beneficial to all growing crops. Wee favorable for cultivation and for harvest of hay and oats. Shipping peaches from commercial orchards begun, apple prospects continue good.

North Carolina: Excessive rains in central-north caused damage by washing and flooding but rainfall beneficial where not excessive. Progress and condition of cotton very good in west and portion of central; some improvement in east where condition poor to fair. Corn and tobacco very poor to excellent. Sweet potatoes truck and fruit doing well.

JOSEPH WHITEHEAD

SKETCH OF WHITEHEAD

KKK CANDIDATE IN OKLAHOMA IS STILL IN LEAD

J. C. Walton, Ousted Governor Is Hard on His Heels, Returns Incomplete

(By The Associated Press.) OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 6.—Congressman E. B. Walton, of Tulsa, Okla., favored candidate, held a tight lead over J. C. Walton, ousted governor and bitter Klan opponent, in the race for the democratic nomination for the United States senate in returns from yesterday's primary election held today.

Unofficial returns from 1,137 of the 2,996 precincts in the State gave Howard 37,482 and Walton 38,814. The other three candidates apparently are out of the running.

In the Republican senatorial contest, W. B. Pine, of Okmulgee, Klan-endorsed candidate, had a lead of nearly 8,000 over his nearest opponent, Eugene Lorton, Tulsa publisher, and adversary of the Klan when returns from 456 precincts were tabulated. The southwestern part of the State where Walton is said to be a strong favorite, has not yet reported.

His supporters are fully heard from he will be leading by a good margin. Howard backers point out that returns from his congressional district in the northwest are far from complete and predict that later reports will offset any advantage Walton may gain. Returns also are incomplete from the northwest, including the Panhandle section, due to a storm last night which crippled communication facilities.

In seven of the eight congressional districts of the State incumbents are running for re-nomination and have comfortable leads over their opponents. The incumbents include seven Democrats and one Republican. Two of the democratic candidates are unopposed.

(By The Associated Press.) KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 6.—When 75 complete precincts out of 2,579 in Kansas had been tabulated shortly before noon today, Ben S. Paulsen, of Fredonia had taken a commanding lead over Clyde M. Reed and A. R. Stubbs in the Republican race for the gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's primary. The figures: Paulsen, 24,882; Reed 18,764; Stubbs, 19,361.

United States Senator Arthur Capper appeared assured of re-nomination on the Republican ticket by a vote of an overwhelming majority. Returns from 363 precincts showed him running more than 3 to 1 ahead of Harry S. Burton. The totals: Davis 7,624; Burton 1,906.

The vote in the race for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. senate was running close with the balloting split five ways. Returns from 340 precincts gave: James Malone 2,006; Ed T. Hackler 1,862; Ben S. Gailis 1,728; S. H. Carr, 1,091; Ed Ford 932.

Incumbents in Congress were leading in all the districts where there were contests.

A storm last night which destroyed telegraph and telephone service and put light and power wires out of commission in many sections of the state caused unprecedented difficulties in reporting the results. A score of counties, most of them in western districts, were completely isolated and returns probably will not be received from several until late today.

COMMITTEE TO INSPECT U. S. AIR SERVICE

Appointed at Last Session of Congress to Liqueur Into Air Service.

(By The Associated Press.) NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Aug. 6.—The congressional committee named at the last session of Congress to inquire into the air services of the United States reached Langley Field this morning, where they were greeted by Major General Mason M. Patrick, who flew down from Washington to welcome them. The committee is headed by Representative Florian Lampert, of Wisconsin, and the other members are: Perkins of New Jersey; Faust of Missouri and Reid of Illinois, and four Democrats—Lea of California; Pratt of New York; O'Curry of Connecticut and Rogers of New Hampshire.

The committee inspected the flying station soon after it arrived and the Langley airmen then staged a flying exhibition for them.

The visitors will go to the Hampton Roads naval base this afternoon to inspect the flying station there.

S. O. Bland of this city, first district representative in Congress, pointed out the investigation is in response to a house resolution in which it was charged that exorbitant prices were being paid by the government for airplanes; that the services were inefficient and that the government had been dealing with airplane manufacturers, who had been charged with fraud.

Chairman Lampert issued a statement in which he declared the investigation would have no political bias and that it will not be completed until next March. The statement declared also there would be no mud slinging and much raking in the investigation and that all members of the committee realized the same faced with a "serious, interesting, patriotic problem not unquestioned importance to the national defense of the country."

Miss Carrie Burch has returned from William and Mary College, where she has been attending summer school. Also a visit from Charlotte Courthouse.

Americans frogs are being shipped to China where they will be raised if they do not croak.

DIRIGIBLE FLIGHT POSTPONED

(By The Associated Press.) LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 6.—The flight of the dirigible Shenandoah, scheduled to start at 3:45 o'clock this morning for Narragansett Bay, Rhode Island, where the specially constructed mooring mast about the mother ship was to be tried, was postponed early today because of the weather forecast of thunderstorms in the New Jersey region.

Weather conditions permitting, flight and mooring test will be carried out Thursday.

Henry Ford May Be Candidate

(By The Associated Press.) LANSING, Mich., Aug. 6.—A move to place Henry Ford's name on the September primary ballots as a Republican candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination for the U. S. Senate was launched here today, apparently by interests favorable to the candidacy of W. W. Potter, chairman of the public utilities commission for the Republican nomination for governor.

The secretary of the public utilities commission caused Ford nominating petitions to be printed and one set was to be placed in circulation in Detroit.

WITHOUT HIS CONSENT.

(By The Associated Press.) DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 6.—The movement to make Henry Ford a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator was started without Mr. Ford's knowledge or consent, it was said at his offices here today.

TODAY HOTTEST DAY?

Several people have expressed the opinion that today is the hottest day of the summer season. However, according to the report of the U. S. Weather Bureau, the thermometer was only registering 84 degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon, while it is registered as high as 100 degrees on previous occasions. The oppressive heat is caused by the humidity of the atmosphere.

Miss Janie Averette has returned from the Peabody Conservatory at Boston where she has recently followed a music course. She is repairing to open her school of music in Danville early in September.

Miss Josephine Corwin who has been ill for the past five weeks is reported to be improving.

CHARLES PONZI ENDS FEDERAL TERM TODAY

(By The Associated Press.) PLYMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 6.—Charles Ponzi, his terms as a federal prisoner ended, left the Plymouth jail today. Accompanied by a deputy sheriff, he went to Boston to try to arrange for the furnishing of $14,000 bail required for him on charges brought in the State courts in connection with his financial schemes.

Yanks Defeat Tigers; Senators Lose; Pittsburgh Wins

BROWNS HARD ON HEELS OF THE SENATORS

Yanks Still Well in Lead in American; Senators Drop Four in a Row.

(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The American League spotlight, monopolized the past few weeks by New York, Detroit and Washington, is focused today upon St. Louis. As a result of four straight victories over the Senators and eight wins out of their last nine games, the Browns now are within a game and a half of the capital's representatives and four and a half behind the Yankees, who lead the league by two games.

Thriving on the intense heat which evidently wilted Detroit's pitchers, the Yanks placed 17 hits in every unguarded spot on a Naylor field and crossed the plate nine times. The Senators, on the other hand, were out of their skins in the third inning, when they were whaling out of their skins with Wilt and Dugan on the lines.

Spencer, holding Washington to three singles in the first game, and Danforth, who judiciously appropriated eight hits in the second, were chiefly responsible for St. Louis' double triumph over Washington. The scores were 2 to 0 and 4 to 2. Jacobson and Judd hit for the circuit in the eighth and ninth.

Chicago kept pace with the Browns, whom they trail by four games and a half, with a two-py win from Philadelphia, 5 to 3. The Phillies, in a mound battle between Coveleskie and Ferguson, Cleveland eked out a 1 to 0 decision over Boston. Ben Johnson, president of the American League, was a spectator.

Errors at catcher's times to the excellent pitching of Guy Bush, the Cub recruit, and gave the Giants a 2 to 1 victory in 10 rounds. Bush yielded but four hits and drove in his team's only run with a double in the eighth.

Eleven innings were necessary to settle the Cincinnati-Philadelphia clash in favor of the former by a score of 4 to 3. The Phillies knotted the count in the eighth and ninth before finally succumbing to the Reds' irresistible offense.

It took St. Louis just two innings to put the game away from the Cardinals' reach. The Cardinals chased seven men across the plate in the initial two frames and finally won 8 to 4.

For the Game's Sake

By LAWRENCE PERRY

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—With the closing of the summer course for coaches at the University of Illinois, George Huff, director of athletics at Urbana, has kindly complied with the request of the writer to set down his views concerning this comparatively novel department of university work which is developing upon rather a large scale throughout the country.

"I have felt," writes Mr. Huff, "that coaching should be elevated to the dignity of a profession and I feel that in the last decade there has been a great advance. One of the most striking evidences of this advance is in standards and seriousness of purpose of coaches in the eagerness to improve their knowledge."

"The annual summer course for coaches at the University of Illinois has just closed. There were 470 students, eighty per cent of them experienced coaches from forty-three states and two foreign countries. This summer course was established back in 1914 with 122 students. I am told that our course has by far the largest attendance of any course of the kind, but there are many other coaches attending similar schools this summer, which strengthens my conviction that the modern coach is determined to improve himself."

"One of the most interesting features at Urbana has been the collaboration of Bob Zupke of Illinois and Gilmore Dobbie of Cornell. Each has taught a large football class. The coaches listen to these well-known coaches and contrast their views and systems. It is hardly necessary to state that there is no connection between the summer course and Illinois undergraduate athletics. As I have explained, the course is primarily for experienced coaches. No varsity football players took football this year."

"Just one football player this summer happened to be registered in the course, for a class in track athletics. He is a student in agriculture who was there to make up some academic work. As he plans to combine teaching and coaching he thought it well to learn something about track work."

"That young man is more and more of a professional coach. He is a professor in the four years course in coaching at Illinois. This course leads to a degree of Bachelor of Science in education and scientific subjects in academic and physical education."

"At this writing it looks very much as if our registration would be doubled. We are a very popular school. These boys come as far away as from California and New York."

"Educators tell us ever so often that they are convinced that no one has as much influence for good or evil as the coach and they want coaches of high character as well as skill. It is this type of coach which we seek to develop. We want none but boys of high character and good scholarship. That is far more important than their athletic ability, as most of the successful coaches we have turned out have been mediocre athletes."

Peckinpough Is Still Good

ROGER PECKINPAUGH

By BILLY EVANS

In Roger Peckinpough the Washington club has one of the greatest shortstops that has ever graced the game.

Peckinpough, having one of the best years of his long and brilliant career, is perhaps the most valuable shortstop in the major leagues this year.

Always a sensational fielder, Peckinpough's work in this respect has simply been uncanny this year. At the bat his hits have been equally timely. In the pinch he does his best work.

In figuring a player's value consideration must be given to the hits he takes away from the opposition by some brilliant play. If the hits Peckinpough has taken away from the opposition were added to his batting average his mark this year would be well over 400.

During the month of July, I umpired 22 straight games. At the Washington club while it was making its sensational dash to the top of the American League race.

Helps Winning Streak
No player did more to help that winning streak than Peckinpough. In those 22 games I feel that I am conservative in saying I saw him make 40 seemingly impossible plays.

Peckinpough is a veteran. A few years ago some of the critics had him slipping fast. It is hard to tell how many more years he has in his system. When an infielder breaks he goes quickly.

Despite the fact that the star of Peckinpough is waning, the club hasn't the slightest worry as to his successor. In case Bluege, now playing in the minor leagues, is not successful, Stanley Harris feels he has just the man to succeed the clever Peckinpough.

In New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Another illusion shattered. Yesterday I saw and heard a phonograph record made. I always thought it was necessary to conduct the operation in a padded cell-like sound-proof room.

It isn't. The studio is in a duplex apartment building in 5th street. Living rooms, beneath and adjoining are wealthy families. There is no furniture in the apartment and the room used for recording records, making the master—is the living room.

Horns project from the kitchen of the apartment, where the wax plates in which the music is embedded are turned on a small machine, into the room where the record makers do their stuff.

Through the open windows come the gas fumes of bustling traffic in the crowded streets below. The noise of the street is drowned out by the "rum-pa-da" of brass instruments. The musicians have doffed cats and collars.

There are three recording horns for this record. The big horn in the center to catch the music of the orchestra. A small horn on either side, which two harmony boys sing. The violin player takes his station directly before the big recording horn. The louder instruments, graduated by sound volume, are in the rear.

"Ready!" An electric light flashes on "One—two three," whispers the orchestra leader. At "three" the music starts. The light goes out. The recording has started. After the first few bars, the music is played by the first horn, bird steps to his horn and sings the verse. The second singer joins in the chorus. In three minutes it's all over.

Two test records are made. Then two master records. One of the song birds, an actor couldn't stand still. He wanted to dance, as well as sing. That's what he does in his show.

Jeanette Houston, who comes from Urbana, Ohio, and William F. Bell of Kentucky, recently were married at the Church of the Ascension, near first church, built on Fifth Avenue. The church in which President Tyler was married.

As the bride couple marched to the altar, an aged woman in mourning, rose from one of the front pews and handed the bride a bouquet of beautiful roses.

The bride had loaned the lady, a woman high in society, carfare to return home, after she had lost her purse. But it was an embarrassed bride that carried two bridal bouquets to the altar.

Three young urchins, who often come into the office, have just returned from two weeks on a farm. Now they know whence milk really comes. They all had seen a cow in the zoo at Central Park, but never before had they seen milk come from an udder, as they did on the farm they visited.

One of them, a master of a clothesline, lassoed a bull snake and rushed into the farm house with it dangling from his hands. He was so scared he couldn't talk. His country cousins laughed. Yet this snake-fearing youngster skips through New York traffic, more treacherous than bull snakes, with an abandon that would wreck the complacency of his cousin of the farm.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—By virtue of his victory on points over Irish Johnny Curtin, of Jersey City in a 12 round match at Henderson's bowl Brooklyn, last night, Frankie Genaro of New York, American fly-weight champion, today is a force to be reckoned with in bantam-weight circles. It was Genaro's first fight outside his class but he collected Curtin in a very round in the opinion of the newspapermen at the ring side.

M'LAREN TELLS WHY HE ABANDONED WORLD FLIGHT

(By The Associated Press.)

ABOARD U. S. COAST GUARD CUTTER ALGONQUIN, Aug. 6.—Via wireless to The Associated Press.—Viz St. Paul Island.—Major A. Stuart MacLaren's own account of the accident last Saturday which terminated his attempted world flight near Nikolai, Komandorski Islands, Siberia, has been given by the British aviator, en route with his companions aboard the Thielpaul for Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island in the Aleutians.

A dense fog and visibility so poor that only part of the right wing of the plane could be seen when encountered by the fliers after leaving Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, Siberia. Forced to descend to within 100 feet of the ocean and making 100 miles an hour a disaster was narrowly averted by Flying Officer W. N. Plenderleith, piloting the plane, when he avoided by two feet an island which appeared suddenly in the path.

Fearing that the plane might dash against the cliffs of Bering Island, a forced landing was made. Both wing tips were shattered and wrenched off, and the fabric torn off the lower port wing, Major MacLaren said. He continued:

"My first order was for life belts, which were packed in Lieutenant Broome's seat in the forward cockpit. I then examined the hull but there was no sign of it taking water. The fog was so dense that we could not see land. My watch stopped at 10:55 a. m. the time we hit the water Saturday."

"We saw hundreds of birds flying in two steady streams. We thought they were leaving their nests for open sea fishing and would return to feed their young. This tallied with my calculation that land should be east-southeast and fairly close."

"The engine was then started and we attempted to taxi but it was almost impossible to steer the plane as the wing tips buried themselves in the water, alternately swerving the plane around. Lieutenant Broome and myself spent two hours running back and forward on the lower wings as the plane seaward and the weight of the engine threatened to capsize the ship."

"We had to stop the engine repeatedly as the water boiled and sprayed over the plane. The machine threatened to dive under the waves when the tail plunged. The wings then started to break. During our last desperate minute aboard the plane, Lieutenant Broome pointed to the east where a patch of fog lifted. We could dimly see land. We started the engine with difficulty as every one was getting exhausted. We were all cold and wet. Plenderleith left the pilot's seat to help start the motor. We then saw a sandy beach ahead about two miles off."

"The engine was started and we ran close to the breakers. The engine then failed us and was useless. A sprocket on the starting magnet was broken. We then dropped anchor but a high wind blowing straight on dragged the plane northward."

"Everyone jumped into the cold waters and held the plane heading toward the sea. The wind and the heavy sea finally slackened and we beached the plane. Plenderleith and myself unloaded the equipment. The fog began to lift and we rested in the afternoon. It was bright, warm and clear."

"The island we saw for a few moments in the fog and which we narrowly escaped proved to be Sea Lima rock, 150 feet high and 77 miles northwest of Nikolai. Our course from West Kamchatka to Bering Island intercepted it. I had allowed three degrees to five for drift along the route which shows that both navigation and steering were faultless. Lieutenant Broome then recognized our position as Buckeye Rock. He declared that he remembered the location during his trip here last April when he was laying supply bases for 'between Vancouver, B. C. and the Kurile Islands, Japan."

"At length Rungall Miles, a man who lived on the island, ran across us. He obtained aid and two boats were manned. The boats reached the plane which was pulled on the shore out of the water."

"The Russian wireless operator on Bering Island then got in touch with the Canadian trader, Thielpaul at Petropavlovsk. The Thielpaul sailed immediately under forced steam and arrived Sunday morning. They took us aboard, and we sailed at midnight for Dutch Harbor."

"Major Tanaka Ija and Lieutenant Commander Togunago, Japanese officers, and Russian officers of the Thielpaul did commendable work in salvaging the plane. It was impossible to arrange through the Japanese government for passage to Japan, so we decided to go on the Thielpaul to Dutch Harbor and Vancouver, B. C. "The conditions, must be abandoned. We are sorry but it can't be helped under the circumstances."

Coolidge Will Limit Speech

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President Coolidge has decided to limit his speech accepting the Republican nomination to discussion of a few major topics.

To this end he is "boiling down" the first draft of his address, carefully prepared and touching on many subjects, after a long and telling friends he just couldn't treat all things of interest in the United States in one speech.

Among the topics Mr. Coolidge is expected to emphasize in his address is his final form are the administration's record in foreign relations, government economy, and tax reduction. The speech will be delivered at the formal notification exercises here Aug. 14.

The Sportsman

By WALTER CAMP

(Copyright, 1924, by The Bee)
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The Women's International and British games held this month at Stamford Bridge, London, have already received entries from France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and Canada.

How shocked would some of the old timers be to see this host of the fair sex monopolizing the tinder path and field! Truly we are moving rapidly these days.

Ohio State is going to start even its early season football game at 2:30 p. m. next season. Would that all colleges were wise enough to follow this example. In too many games started late in the evening dusk has made the officials' job a most exasperating one.

The writer has seen several games within the decade where a hidden ball play would not only have mystified the opponents but would have fooled the officials as well.

All the big games are started at 2 o'clock to avoid the drawback of darkness and although minor games are played earlier in the season, as for there is more daylight it would be better to start them at 2:30 o'clock.

The feeling of gloom that came over many tennis enthusiasts last year at Forest Hills when Little Bill Johnston went down to defeat before his tall Antipodean rival, James O. Anderson, was really caused by the inevitable question as to whether this popular player was on the wane.

No man, save perhaps McLaughlin, ever had the public so strongly with him and so desirous of seeing him attain the heights, as has Bill Johnston. This has been the case for years. For this season his defeat last week at Southbricht at the hands of Howard Kinsey was depressing to a large part of the tennis world. Kinsey should have all the glory, but what the crowd says: "Has Johnson gone down hill?" Seems ominous. Have all his game struggles in the past with that rather frail physique finally sapped his stamina? Well, we shall see this month.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

MR. J. MCGRAW
As McGraw goes to go the Giants. If they don't Mac smacks 'em across the fresh laid concrete with a yard of Tiffany gas pipe.

Scribes used to call him Little Napoleon of Baseball. But the French protested. Claimed this was giving old Nap too much credit.

Mac serves the cold slow to his boys with an iron palm. His motto is, "Treat 'Em Rougher."

Maybe this don't bring him love notes from the field hands, but they always call him Mister when he steps in the dugout.

You gotta get right down to brass tacks with the heavyweight champ of the Lambs' Club. . . . And if it's knucks you want, pull up a chair and name your headache wafers.

Mr. J. McGraw doesn't mind lending a ball player a helping hand, but if a kick in the rear makes him go faster, he'll get him there quicker the boys are always there, watchful and waiting.

As long as you can flatten the apple, run the cause bags and knock down base hits you can pin tails on the donkey at Mr. McGraw's taffy pull. When you become minus in any of these fancy details you are through Mr. McGraw and Miss Sentiment parted at the altar.

John J. has a delegation of old-timers on his pay roll as ground keepers, ticket takers, coaches and assistant managers, but he knows they are through as ball players. The sentiment that counts a manager who keeps a ball player who is through because he used to be good never has to sit up all night wondering who to pitch in the first world series game.

Mr. McGraw is not one of those bulging brain birds who thinks he knows it all. . . . Mr. McGraw knows he knows it all.

S. C. TOBACCO MARKET OPENS THIRD SEASON

Growers Much Pleased With Market Prices and Payments Received.

(From Co-op News Bureau)
FLORENCE, S. C., Aug. 6.—Richard R. Patterson, general manager of the tobacco growers co-operative association, A. R. Breedlove, general manager of its leaf department and T. C. Watkins, director of warehouse attended the opening of association markets today and visited York, Kingsburg, Manning, Sumter, Larch, Balford and Timmonsville. Mr. Breedlove when asked about the opening of the association's third season stated that it was the most satisfactory since the beginning of the association has never functioned more smoothly at each point visited than was the case today. He talked with many growers and found them all satisfied with the grading of their tobacco and the cash advance on the 1924 crop. The association's receipts were larger than expected according to Mr. Breedlove who said that while the crop is not as good in quality as the year of 1923 there was a fair amount of good in today's deliveries and in his opinion the color makes this crop especially desirable for export and that ready sale of the improved conditions in the European markets.

The tobacco growers co-operative association not only maintained its high advances of last year today but doubled its cash advance on the low end grades. Checks to the amount of nearly $500,000 were ready for the members today and those who carry tobacco the co-operative florists took home their third payment of the season. The first cash advance was paid the associated growers of South Carolina today will average higher than the price paid to growers in the opening days of auction sales before the war according to Mr. Breedlove.

VERY DULL SESSION ON SOUTHERN MART

(By The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5.—The cotton market was not active today as it has been in recent sessions, but the trend of prices was upward. The main stimulating influence was the increasing seriousness of the drought in the west, which is gradually extending to the central belt, the very much more favorable character of foreign political news and an increasing demand for spots in the southern at higher premiums. Liverpool came in lower than due, October traded at 26 1/2 near the opening and December at 26 1/2, or 10 to 13 points below the closing of yesterday. Later October gradually advanced to 27 1/2 and December to 27 1/2 or 62 and 54 points up from the low. There was a moderate reaction in the late trading on realizing and the close showed net gains for the day of 24 to 37 points.

The initial cause of the advance was the failure of the weather map to show any trace of the rains expected yesterday. Except a "light shower at Taylor in South Texas." Private reports from the western particularly from Texas, admitted that the drought was becoming serious and that the crop was going sick, shedding rather freely and looking as the top.

Three more condition reports were issued today showing condition ranges ranging from 6.8 to 68.5. Two of the reports gave crop indications of 12,423,000 and the other 12,440,000. The average condition of the fourteen private reports so issued is 68.2 and the average crop indication is 12,234,000 bales.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—It is the customary thing to toss bouquets at Washington. Perhaps it is a sort of national pride, a sense of obligation to stick up for our national capital that leads writers here to stress the unimpaired beauty of the parks and in certain of the more select residential districts.

And, as it is these beauty spots that are always emphasized on the attention of visitors viewing the town, they also catch something of the booster spirit and go away discoursing on "beautiful Washington."

But no city, not even Washington, deserves all bouquets. Brickbats also are in order. And considering the fact that it is the national capital and SHOULD be the ideal municipality of the nation, Washington is deserving of as many brickbats as the average busy and begrimed industrial city of our hundreds of much-maligned "Mina Street" towns.

Washington is mentally and physically a city of false fronts. There is more pretense here per block than in any burg between Broadway and Hollywood.

Possibly this is a reflection of the political instability which always threatens a large part of the population with change. Under civil service of course, government jobs are not dependent on the whims of changing administrations as in years gone by.

But it is not the civil service employ who helps hold up the city's false front. It is the eternal political job-holder, the big duck out of a little puddle who comes to Washington expecting to be a big duck in a big puddle.

In nine times out of 10, or 99 out of 100, he finds the city wholly unimpressed by his advent. But he feels important and is determined to make others recognize his importance.

So he puffs out his chest, grows gruff and growls with the "suburbs" who perform the actual duties for him.

Fifty-third Article.
Financial Review.

In the last article in this series it was pointed out how systematic study of financial conditions should always be begun with the daily review or leader on the financial page. Now this review from the nature of the case confines itself almost exclusively to developments of one day. In itself this gives only a partial and incomplete idea of the financial situation as a whole.

It must be supplemented by more general articles such as the weekly summary which practically all newspapers print at the end of the week on Saturday or Sunday. Here you find the developments of six days classified and interpreted in a more general way than is possible in any daily article and once more let me emphasize the importance of some acquaintance with the financial situation as a whole before one can intelligently inform himself as to the status of any particular investment whether stocks or bonds. The mistake the inexperienced investor makes is almost always connected with the error of taking a security out of its setting.

Having gone this far the investor can extend his knowledge by taking up monthly reviews published by the large bank of the country, reviews put out by the various federal reserve banks as a guide to business men and information published from time to time by the Federal Reserve Board at Washington. It takes patience and application to get the most out of these sources of information but it will well reward not only the man interested in securities but every merchant. Probably there never was a time in the history of the United States when there was available so much data upon which to found an opinion as to the outlook for trade than at present.

(Mr. Hughes' fifty-fourth article will appear in The Bee next Saturday.)

MORNING STOCK LETTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A sufficient number of people thinking the same and acting the way produce results in the stock market or in any market. For several days the word reaction was frequently spoken and frequently printed soon was started. There has not been a reaction worthy the name since the commencement of the rise. Therefore many will call it timid. And at this particularly moment it is rather distressing to find a company who deemed it necessary to pass its preferred dividend. It may have some influence today though I see no reason why the general market should suffer because of the action of another of the companies who have recently distinguished themselves by abandoning dividends.

How far is the reaction going? That is the all important point. Unless the long interest is more seriously overextended than I can see, an hour or two today ought to be sufficient.

NEW YORK STOCKS.
(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Realizing sales continued to place a strain upon the stock market at today's opening, giving it an irregular appearance. U. S. Steel common and several of the independent steels moved fractionally lower while various railroad shares yielded further to profit taking. Congoleum displayed independent strength, rising 2 3/4. Pressed Steel Car receded 2 1/2 points in recognition of the dividend.

With the initial batch of selling orders absorbed, the way was opened for recovery in certain sections of the list. General Electric rebounded 2 3/4 points and American Tobacco, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron American Iron Timken Roller Bearing and Mack Truck moved up a point or so, the latter reaching a 1924 high price. Rumors linking Pittsburgh and West Virginia with the Van Sweringen merger plans sent this stock up 1 1/2 points with "Nickel Plate" pfd. advancing about 2 points along with New York Central and Norfolk and Western. All trading pressure encountered renewed selling pressure, falling back almost 3 points. Foreign exchanges opened higher.

NEW YORK COTTON.
(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Increased anxiety over Texas crop prospects as a result of the continued drought was held responsible for an opening advance of 14 to 23 points in the cotton market here today. Buying on the unfavorable southwestern weather situation was encouraged by relative firm Liverpool cables and active months soon sold 42 to 48 points net higher with October touching 28 1/2 and December 23 1/2. These prices attracted considerable realizing but the buying movement continued and the early market held steady at moderate reactions. Liverpool attributed the advance there to speculative and trading buying on less favorable crop reports.

CHICAGO GRAIN.
(By The Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Although in sympathy with lower quotations at Liverpool, the wheat market here showed weakness at the opening today, an advance soon took place. Opening prices varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1/2 cents lower.

Corn opened 1-4 to 1-1/2 down. Oats started at 3-8 off to 1-4 up. Provisions were without any significant change.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Cables higher. The south had mostly clear weather yesterday. Forecast for Texas and Oklahoma is fair, other states showers today or tomorrow. Indicated crop coverage of 15 private reports is 12,235,000 against 11,935 indicated by agt government, and average condition is 68.4 against last government of 68.5.

Spot basis in southwest weakened again yesterday. July rainfall in Texas was smallest in thirty years but the state had ample rains previously. Drought complaints from that state increased yesterday. Texas deterioration however, is being offset by excellent reports from all other sections of the belt. Expect nervous market awaiting Friday's report.

Governorship In Kansas Uncertain

(By The Associated Press.)
KANSAS CITY, Aug. 6.—A neck and neck race developed early today in the contest for the Republican nomination to governor of Kansas, but with Lieutenant Governor Ben S. Paulsen maintaining his early lead over Clyde M. Stubbins. Returns from 614 precincts out of 2,579 in the state in yesterday's primary gave Paulsen, who carried the Ku Klux Klan endorsement, a margin of 1,735 votes over Stubbins. Stubbins separated from second place by only 23 votes. The vote: Paulsen 15,333; Reed 13,394; Stubbins 13,569.
